Kathleen Aguero's latest book of poetry is After That. She also co-edited three volumes of multi-cultural literature for the University of Georgia Press. She teaches in the low-residency M.F.A. in creative writing program at Pine Manor College and in Changing Lives through Literature, an alternative sentencing program. She has conducted creative writing for caregivers workshops privately and through adult and community education centers.

After That addresses the complicated emotions and confusion in caring for parents with advanced dementia. It explains confrontations with dementia, while also examining the psyche of the caregiver -the former child entering her own senior years.
