VI. INFORMATION ITEMS

Vice President Morris Foster described the research motivations and benefits of the new Strategic Plan. He also presented a preliminary overview of the findings of a study of data science opportunities in Hampton Roads. The emergence of data science occupations is broad based in the Hampton Roads region. Key areas of high growth and strong specialization are found in cybersecurity, marine engineering, and logistics occupations. ODU leads in data science degrees awarded in Hampton Roads. ODU is moving data science forward for the region and the state through the School of Data Science, national lab partnerships, cluster hires, interdisciplinary bachelor’s and master’s degrees, and data science innovation clusters.

Dr. John Nunnery, Associate Vice President for Research, presented outcomes of the applied research initiative launched by the Office of Research in 2016. The initiative has used five key strategies: (1) develop and apply University strengths to regional needs, (2) capitalize on regional assets to develop a unique competitive edge, (3) develop organizational capacity through restructuring and capability enhancement, (4) expand the range of funding mechanisms used to support R&D, and (5) re-charge existing partnerships and develop new partnerships at all levels. Outcomes of the initiative included 49% growth in non-traditional R&D expenditures, several new types of funding mechanisms, 68% growth in industry-sponsored research, and over 800% growth in applied research expenditures from $1.9 million to over $16 million per year in 2022. Further growth is expected in FY 2023 through recent major funding for the Coastal Resilience Authority and for Mission Engineering.

The meeting was adjourned at 4:53 p.m.
